Mr. Blanford, in his book on Abys-nia, says that neither the doreas nor shink, says that neather the decreas her Benett's grazelle (two allied species) ever drink. Darwin states in his "Voy-age of a Naturalist" that unless the manuacoes or wild llamas of Patagonia drink salt water in many localities they must drink none at all. The large and interesting group of sloths are alike in never drinking. A parrot is said to have lived in the zoological gardens, Regent's park, for fifty-two years with-out a drop of water. It is often said out a drop of water. It is often said that rabbits in a wild state never drink. The late Rev. J. G. Wood doubted whether this idea was correct and recorded the fact that they feed on herbge when it is beavy with dew and, herefore, practically drink when esting. In the autumn and winter, when beep are leeding on turnips, they re-quire little or no water.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

What is needed in the small fruit market is not so many names but a few more berries, say about two pints to the quart. Every berry in the land has more names now than a caterpillar. and he has more than he can remember When he begins business he is a plain caterpillar, and everybody who steps on him knows just what to call him. Then he retires—that is if he has a chance to retire before he is trodden under foot-and is known as a larvathen he gets to be a pupa or a chrysalis or something, and by the time he gets to be a butterfly he forgets what the old firm name was. You are probably thinking of some people just now who, like the strawberry, travel on their names, and do not just exactly know how they got them either.—Ladies Home Journal.

The Fondest Hope of Every Geologist Every geologist in the west, or at east every one who says his prayers at all, goes down on his knees every night and prays that he may discover a vein of lithograph stone. There is only one quarry of this precious material in the United States, and that is somewhere in the northeast. The best stone comes from Germany, and is so valuable and expensive that the discovery of even a small vein would prove the fortune of the finder. The geologists are con-vinced that there must be an abundance of this material somewhere in the United States, and so keep a sharp lookout on any newly discovered stone, for a vein of the lithograph stone would be worth more to its owner than a gold mine.—St. Louis Globe

LOCOMOTIVES FOR THE FAIR. Interesting English Railway Exhibits to

He Sent to the World's Fair. The prospects for a magnificent and ensive exhibit in the department of transportation are exceedingly The recent business trip of Chief Smith to Europe was attended with far more successful and gratifying sults than were anticipated. While the most famous shipbuilders of Great Britain will send the largest and finest collection of models of battleships, eruisers, yachts, merchant vessels, compers, etc. that ever was sent to any country for exhibition purposes, the railway feature will be quite as prominent. The leading English railways are fully aroused to the importance of being alequately represented. The London & Northwestern railway will send over a complete train of cars headed by the superb compound loco-motive Great Britain. This will afford sity of cont compartment style of traveling and sleeping cars with our own im-proved Wagner and Pullman methods. The same railway will also show specimens of their permanent way and give practical illustrations of their signaling system. The London, Chatham & Dover railway will not only show the signals in use on their line, but full models of the elegant steamers employed in their channel service. The Great Western railway will send the "Lord of the Isles," the famous old seventeen-foot gauge locomotive which was built for

THERE seems to be a boom in the cyanide process in southern Arizona.

THE Gila Bend Arizonan is doing much for that favored section of Arizona. It should receive the support that it so justly merits.

H. C. Boons is no longer in the race for U.S. marshalship, W.K. Meade is as sure of the appointment as the Prosvector is of a reward in the next world for newspaper men.

THE Board of Trade will take : hand in the experiments now going on with the cyanide process in this camp. This is the right spirit, and will be of benefit to the community.

SENATOR ALLISON is quoted as say ing that he hoped for much at the next session of the silver conference to be held in Paris. He believes England will be friendly to silver

THE outlook for southern Arizona is very bright just nov. The beavy snow in the mountains and rain in mining circles all point in the direcion of prosperity. Profitable industries and idle capital that have been tied up, awaiting the time when soon be in active operation again, conditions of the same. Honest men, who feared the onslaught of the thug and blackmailer parading behind a U. S. marehal's badge, will feel encouraged to again cast their lot with us. By July, the PROSPECTOR predicts a boom in Cochise county that we have so long nursed.

THE Territorial Teachers' institute recommended that the office of county field were killed. superintendent of schools and that of none but professional teachers be eligible to the office of county superintendent of schools. This sentiment is endorsed by the people of Arizons. whose children attend public schools. No man should be eligible to the office of school superintendent who can not pass an examination in the three R's. Our schools are retrograding instead of improving, and the cause of it is in a large part due to the control being By all means, let the legislature separate the offices of probate judge and school superintendent. Petitions are already being circulated in other reform. Cocnise county must be up sert that Mr. Roberts is wrong. with the procession and lend a hand toward its consummation.

KING SNAKE AND RATTLER. A Fierce Battle in Which the Former

A king snake ten feet long and a rattlesnake six feet long, thoughtlessly animal store, in New York the other day, had a fight which ended in the death of the rattler. The king snake belongs to the family of constrictors and its squeeze is a great deal worse than its bite. The king is said to have an instinctive hatred for the rattler. Mr. Burns was taking a nap in his store when he was awakened by the peculiar sound of the rattlesnake's vibrant tail and the loud hissing of both reptiles. He found the rattler coiled in the corner of the cage, its head darting back and forth and watching for a chance to strike its larger enemy. The king snake was gliding cautiously near, with the intention of twining its muscular coils around the rattler and crushing it to but was unsuccessful in its attempt to own powerful muscles. In its des perate struggles the rattlesnak knocked the door of its box into piece with a blow of its tail and both reptile fell out on the floor. Burns did not care to take any part in the quarrel He summoned an assistant and finally
